Senior Class Prophecy

It was 1992, 30 years since the Class of '62 left Dublin High School, and a letter from Ed Simpson, now a noted author, was calling me back for a grand reunion with my classmates.

I boarded a rocket and shortly landed at the Vaughn Naval Airport at Dublin, which was named for Steve Vaughn, now an Admiral in the Navy.

I noticed that Dublin had grown quite a bit since I left, and I decided that I would tour Dublin before going to the reunion.

Downtown, the first building I noticed was the Western Auto, but owner and manager, Ronnie Alexander, had already left for the reunion.

Next door, the huge building of the Dublin Daily housed several offices and I decided to investigate those. The first floor housed the newspaper offices and office of the editor, who I later found out was Carole Jo Chandler. The next floor had doctors' offices and on the doors were names as Dr. Alfred Anderson Ratcliffe (out of which the receptionist, Gaynell Morris, was carrying a patient), Dr. Roswell Cox, Dr. Michael Z. Johnston, and Dr. C. Leon Morris. On the next floor, I saw Dan Wilburn, C.P.A.; Doug McGhee, Plumbing; Sam Graham, Contractor; Betty Estes, Contractor; and the law firm of Allison, Allison, McDonald and Richardson, which was composed of Dale Allison, Carolyn Allison, Jackie McDonald, and Phil Richardson.

On the way out of the building, I saw Howard Jennings, editor of the Southwest Times, go storming into the office of Carole Chandler. While I was waiting around to see Howard, I decided to take a tour of the newspaper office, and I was very glad that I did because at the main press I noticed Arnold Duncan, Haven McCoy, Eric Litteral, and Kenneth Reed trying to pull David Roope from the press. I learned later he leaned over to correct a misspelled word and shop manager, Billy Riddle, accidentally turned the press on. At the desks, I saw such names as David Chumbley and William Boyd, Sports Writers; Charlotte Phipps and Brenda Gilbert, Fashion Editors; Patricia Hylton, Lovelorn Editor; Ava Torrence, Political Writer; C. L. Kincer, Cartoon Editor; Billy Chinault, Farm News Editor; Merrill Sifford and Jimmy Coleman, Business Managers; and Betty Hubble, Advertising Manager.

I stepped outside into the sunlight just in time to see Policeman Kay Campbell pull motorcyclist, Carl DeHart, who was doing 150 through the middle of town.

Housewives Shirley Cain, Clara Chrisley, Lois Akers, Scarlett Furrow, and Iris Rupe were rushing into Celia Caldwell's beauty shop to get their hair done at the special low price offered on homecoming day.

I noticed Dublin now had a night club with the name Norman's on the billboard and I found out later that it was Norman Morris's, owner and manager.

In lights, I saw that another familiar person, Stanley Lawson, now a famous comic, was appearing at Norman's. Next door was the Martin Bus Service and owner, Roger Martin, was fussing at John Jackson for being late while Olen Smythers, James Webb, Dell Hall, and Luther Henley took lessons in driving the new jet bus from salesman, Franklin Mills. I noticed the clock at the Trussler Bank, (named for President, Brenda Trussler) that it was almost time for the reunion to begin, and I had not eaten yet. I rushed into Ma McCoy's diner meeting Myrtle McCoy, owner, at the front door in a somewhat undignified position of setting the clock above the door while standing on a chair. After we both got up with the help of Elaine Quesenberry and Barbara French, who were waitresses, I apologized to Miss McCoy and then went on to order.

I found myself sitting beside David Addington who looked rather discouraged because I found out later his newest record sold only three copies. He had bought two and his mother had bought one to play in the bowling alley. I tried to cheer him up but finding I was unsuccessful, I left and started on the way to Dublin High School.

On the way up Giles Avenue, I passed the Dublin Sports Arena and noticed several race car drivers that I knew--Ronnie Alley in his Ford, David Hancock in his Pontiac, Sonny Smith, and Johnny Butler. Ernest Nester drove the pacesetting oldsmobile, and Martha Hamblin, a Nash Rambler. I also noticed Janice Mutter trying to get her chevrolet to the pits because of transmission trouble.

I stopped off at the Dublin Model School to find the director, Linda Hash; Lauraetta McCraw, Peggy McCraw, Laura Jane Midkiff, and Nita Moore modeling sportswear for a few tired housewives. I recognized a few as Patricia Otey, Linda Hodge, Frances Killen, Joyce Arnold, Bonnie Lovern, Mary Warden and Nita Craig.

Before going to the school, I decided to go look at the football stadium and there I found coach Bill Bolling trying to get his Duke team ready to meet their biggest rival Friday night. Fathers Roy Davis, Bobby Harkrader, Marvin Harler, Ranny O'Dell, Howard Stephens, and Jerry Tickle were over in the corner of the field watching their sons while Eddie Wayne was trying to revive his son from a block by Coach Bolling.

I went on up to the school and met the rest of the coaching staff calling Dr. Sherian Lancaster on the office phone. Basketball Coach, Danny Davis, was telling Baseball Coach, Bobby Dickerson, that Wrestling Coach, Jerry Tucker, was exaggerating when he said that Gordon Reams' son had thrown Woodson Spraker out the gym window in a judo exhibition by mistake. I left the locker room, going to the gym and met Mary Catherine Farris, Girls' Basketball Coach, talking to Teresa Whittaker about her daughter being too short to play basketball since she was only 6'1". I went upstairs to find a girls' basketball game in action. Proud mothers watching their daughters play were Jayne Farmer, Judy Harkrader, Phyllis Linkous, Ramona Paris, PeggyTickle, and Lois Nester.

Shirley Goforth was trying to instruct her new cheerleaders to jump and mothers Betty Tickle, Susan Mathena, Julia Meredith, and Dixie Lawson were proudly watching their daughters giggle when Shirley missed a jump and landed in a rather precarious position on the gym floor.

I decided to go down to the office and met the Principal, Tom Graham, rushing out of the office to put out a fire in the Teachers' lounge. I found a few familiar faces at the desks in the office. Linda Boothe was stuffing the teacher's mailboxes while Darlene Nicewander was trying to separate the mail and Wanda Quesenberry was trying to get the electric typewriter to stop making mistakes.

I heard some commotion in the hall and stepped out to find Imogene Haines fussing at Merijoyce Collins for giving her son an "F" in 9th grade science. Other members of the science department were watching and dreading the time Imogene's son would be in their classes. Ruth Ann Sloop, Physics teacher; C. W. Dulaney, Chemistry teacher; and Edith Viers, Biology teacher were trying to figure a way to get Merijoyce off the hook. The other teachers were coming in now, andI noticed Trula Kelly carrying a small briefcase into 101 to meet her Junior English class. Patsy Roope was at the desk in 102 trying to get her demonstration slide rule to slide. I heard a commotion from the band room and turned the corner just in time to see Band Director, Mary Kate Greene, throw Chorus Director, Patsy McPeak, out for tyring to sing "The Hallelujah Chorus" while the band played "Maple Leaves Forever". I found that wasn't the end of the excitement in the band room asI sawWalter Dobyns pull the last of his gray hair while Bobby Herndon, trombone player, and Avria Hall, trumpeter, tried to pull Larry Hash's fingers from the bass fiddle strings after they slipped when he went to sleep in the middle of Walter's solo.

I stepped out in the hall and met Ellen Allison, Spanish teacher, and James Dunnigan, Government teacher, arguing about which country had the best government. James was protesting that a bull fight didn't seem very democratic to him and Ellen said it was simpler than going through Congress.

I went upstairs and saw Janice Eller trying to tell her class how to make an oo and all the brilliant shorthand students just laughed every time she said it.

I saw Bonnie French teaching a Senior English class that it wasn't polite to say "Billy" Shakespeare and Wanda Jones teaching her Home Ec. students to make beds. Other teachers were Lotus Phillips, Judy Southern, Rochelle Warden, Sandra Turner, and Helen Quesenberry. They all seemed to be trying to prove a point to the young "boneheads", as I heard Sandra put it.

At first I couldn't believe it when I saw Bill Chrisley sitting in a class, but upon further observation I found that he wasn't a teacher but still a student and along with him was Joyce Bratton.

I went outside and John MacLeod almost ran over me as he went down the road doing roadwork for a track meet. John, I understand, is a track star now because of the training he received running from a certain girl in high school. And, by the way, Carolyn Wheeler is a professional trainer of trackmen now.

Near the bandroom entrance, Martha Wilson was drilling her new team of Dukettes, and Betty Boothe, Brenda McCambridge, Elizabeth Bowman, and Nancy Ann Phillips were watching their daughters drop their batons just like their instructor.

I was stunned at first to see movie equipment and cameramen running around on the front lawn but upon approaching Producer Martha Jane McMullin, I found they were filming "Mrs. B. Finishes High School", staring Jeanette Hill. I also found out that Miss McMullins' company had made a musical starring Sandra Moran.

I talked to Production Engineer Charlotte Watson and Susie Tickle, Prompter, on the way in to join my classmates of the Class of '62, but something told me I wasn't going to be surprised about anyone's profession.

Wrestling, although a comparatively new sport at Dublin, has gained recognition in the eyes of the school. Under the leadership of Coach Dave Brown, the team has advanced steadily since its beginning three years ago. With only two seniors on the squad, the rest of the team is compiled of underclassmen.

Last year the team journeyed to Norfolk for the state meet and showed surprising power for a new team. This year the Dukes are relatively stronger and hope for a better record.

SPORTSMANSHIP TROPHY

Bill Bolling and John MacLeod, Co-Captains of Varsity Football, receive the Sportsmanship trophy on behalf of the students and faculty of Dublin High School.

This trophy was presented to Dublin High School by the Civitan Club of Roanoke in recognition of good sportsmanship as shown by the varsity football players, coaches, cheerleaders and spectators.

Dublin High School was chosen from 34 other schools rated by the Civitan Club, and this is an honor to be coveted.
